WASHINGTON - The Bernalillo County, N.M., seal has been ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court because it depicts a cross as a symbol of conquest.

The county seal shows a cross and the words "Con esta vencemos (With this we conquer)."

In ruling against the seal, the high court upheld a decision by the 10th District Court, which said that anyone stopped by a police car bearing the seal might "reasonably assume that ... the organization they represented identified itself with the Christian God."!!!

The county, which includes Albuquerque, said that the seal symbolized the historical importance of Spanish Catholicism in the state.

The court said that using the seal would appear that the government was promoting a Christian religion.

Editors note: Our country is under siege by anti-God forces. Are there any Christians left who are willing to fight for their God's honor and to preserve their Christian heritage. St. Joan of Arc, pray for us!

NEWS AND VIEWS

IT HAS BEEN A LONG, TOUGH WINTER

This section is being written at the end of April as this isue is being readied for the press. My printers notified me two weeks ago that they have quit business. May God help me find another printer as good as the last two I've had. My neighbor Iris Supan is taking secretary Colleen Kelly's place. Colleen plans to move back to Houston this spring.

The last of the snow has disappeared from my yard this week. The mountains are still packed full of the life giving moisture, gradually releasing it to the lower valleys and farm country as the weather warms. In Westcliffe itself we had six months of continually snow covered ground, and the same period of generaly colder than normal temperatures, though not the record-breaking cold nights of previous years.

I had a nice long talk with my Aunt and Grandmother Evie Miller the other night. She relates that there is a sense of change in the air, I mean as far as the world situation is concerned.....a major change of the world's climate?,,a worldwide earthquake?, a collapse of the money system?, a war in Russia?, the predicted days of darkness?,the second coming of Christ? Whatever it is, she tells me she has asked the Lord to let her live to see the new day (or era) (of peace) that she feels is dawning after the Almighty cleanses the earth.

Rev. Dr. Ralph Day Moving to Westcliffe

On June 5th Dr.Day and his wife Betty are planning to move into a home in Westcliffe. Betty is looking forward to getting a job cooking for a local resturant and Dr. Day plans to resume his medical practice. I told them I would fly to Boise, Idaho an June 1st and help them pack and drive a truck load of thier things out to Colorado for them. Dr Day has sent me a years supply fo excellent articles which I plan to include in furture issues of the SDCN. I think our vally is going to be blessed to have such a God-fearing and talented and experienced couple living and working in our midst!**

FISHING TRIP AUGUST 11-15

Mountain Bob, Rondo, Katie and a few friends and I plan to pack back into Rito Alto Lake for a few days in August. I'm not an Outfitter, and it is just to much to plan anymore. I may take off somewhere in the rockies the end of June and attend a summer camp the first part of July. I've asked my yongest brother Steve to go on the rockies trip with me. I was getting so down and snowed under this past winter, I needed a get-away trip like this to look forward to. God knows I have enough concerns and things pulling me this way and that.

Getting the mule, Katie, ready to go at the Brush Creek Lakes trailhead.

These high country bucks were still in the velvet down by Mt. Blanca last July.

THE INCH IN ISRAELITE HISTORY

From THE LINK, July/August 1985 - Canada; And reprinted from The Christian Patriot Crusader, December 1986.

A large torque with a circumference of 36 inches has been unearthed by an East Anglican farmer. It is exciting considerable interest because of its age -it is believed to be at least 3000 years old - and also because it is of pure gold. Most Bronze Age torques are much smaller than this latest find and were obviously designed to be worn around the neck. This large torque could have been designed as a decoration around the waist.

To the Identity Christian this is of most significance, not only in the beauty and craftsmanship of the torque - for the ancient Britians were known to be highly civilized people - but that its circumference confirms that the unit of measurement during the Bronze Age in Britian was what we call the Imperial inch. In other words, the inch is an ancient unit of measurement which has been in use in the British Isles for at least three millenia.

A study of the Great Pyramid at Gizeh has shown that the inch was also a unit of measurement in the ancient world. In fact, the inch is essentially the national unit of linear measure of the Anglo-Saxon race, inspired by God Himself. The Jewish historian, Josephus, attested to "the peculiar sort of wisdom" given by God to the descendants of Seth, which enabled them to build astronomically related structures - one being in Egypt. Enoch was in the line of Seth and the Great Pyramid is described by writers as "The Pillar of Enoch."

Unbelievable, as it may seem to many, the ancestors of the Anglo-Saxon peoples must have obtained an extremely accurate knowledge of the dimensions of the Earth. Their basic unit for secular applications was 1/25 of the Sacred Cubit and the latter was related to the Polar Radius of the Earth in the proportion of one to ten million.

Their first construction was the year circle. This was a circle whose circumference was equal to 3652.425 primitive units. Each unit was 1/25 of the Sacred Cubit and has been handed down to posterity, with minor variations, as the European inch. This primitive inch has been established as being equal to 1.001 British inches.

There have been many scientific experiments which prove these arithmetical calculations.

How tragic therefore that the Anglo-Saxon peoples of Britian, Australia, Canada and the U.S., rather than confirm and maintain this truly Earth measurement, have turned to the heathen metric system - a unit of atheistic orgin, having been introduced into France during the Reign of Terror, by skeptics, in 1790. These rejected anything that savored of the Divine. They estimated the length of a quadrant of the earth's circumference along the meridian passing through Paris. This they divided by 10,000,000 and so obtained the unit of measure known as the meter or 39.371 English inches. This system cannot in honesty be considered scientific, for in order for it to be, the circumference of the Earth would have to be a perfect circle - which it is not!

As a unit of measure, the meter represents an error of 100,000 inches in its estimate of the polar diameter and memorializes a scientific blunder in ordinary mathematics of one meter in every 5,300. It therefore has no scientific value. Sir John Herschel, pronounced it the "newest and worst measure in the world," while another scientist regarded it as "inconvenient, innacurate and unstridable." One thing commends it - it symbolizes the falsity, confusion and spiritual destructiveness of atheism and is one of the reasons that the Secular Humanists are so insistent that it be forced on us. Notice how even many road signs are now given in kilometers, as well as miles and at many gas pumps, the figures are in confusing liters, all parts of this atheistic system. The enemy are bound and determined to cram this unscientific system down our throats by "hook or crook." We have a true Anglo-Saxon measurement which has stood the test of time. Let's keep it, we do not need this alien measurement any more than we need their alien interference. ◆

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

February 19, 1987

Dear Father Daniel

I read with interest the article entitled MONEY in the December 1986 issue of the SDCN. The article contains several factual errors.

When the US government needs to raise additional funds because of budget deficits it sells US securities at public auction. These auctions are well publicized both before and after the fact. You and I can participate. The smallest denomination available is $1,000.

As of 09/30/86, the US government owed approximately $2.125 billion. This amount was divided among the lenders as follows (in billions):

Federal debt held by agencies & trusts..$380
Federal debt held by Federal Reserve Banks..190
Federal debt held by private US investors..1,300
Federal debt held by foreign investors..255

You will note that the Federal Reserve's share was only about 9 percent. Further more, the Fed annually remits to the US treasury an amount which approximates the amount received in interest on the securites.

If we were more selective in who we send to represent us in Congress, deficit spending would not exist and so there would be no need for the government to borrow.

Yes, it is true that the friendly banker down the street can (and often does) create "check-book" money. Or to put it another way, creates money out of nothing. But who's need is he supplying? Is it his fault we insist on buying what we want before we have saved the money to do so?

May God Bless.
Vic Humeniuk, Tucson, AZ

Editor's note: The money question in America is not an unimportant one. It seems to me that our citizen's are de facto in an unprecedented economic bondage. We are financing, by our labor and taxes, our enemies both domestic and foreign. We are being punished for straying from our God and not keeping His commandments. When we are brought low enough, maybe we'll wake up, reject usury as God told us to, and see a jubilee year proclaimed in our precious land.

November 3, 1986

Dear Father Dan,

Was happy to receive the latest issue of SDCN, inspiring and informative, as usual. It seems to me that Mr. Girard is overly critical of religion, the schools, etc.

I attended Catholic schools 15 years in the older days. The instruction on the Catholic Faith was good and complete. The priests and nuns were some of the best people I've known.

(Somewhat later, from other sources, I learned about vaccination as an evil, the Illuminati, the goyim, republics and democracies, fractional banking, lawful money, and creeping socialism. All good to know.)

Religion is necessary to honor God, as a channel of grace, for the uplifting of community life, and other reasons. Philosophically, I know that my liberty is only the freedom to seek truth and try to do right. I don't feel regimented if I happen to discover truth in the same place that others do.

We need an increase of Faith, Hope, and Charity. I hope that people will stay together in marriage, or return to each other, and enjoy the blessings of the family.

Sincerely,

John Birdzell, Bismarck, ND

Dear Fr. Dan:

Just a quick note to give you my new address and phone--got here last Wednesday, and my head still isn't screwed on straight! I can best describe this place by saying that if God had come down and given me carte blanche to chose a church, furnish and decorate it, then hand-pick the congregation, I couldn't have done any better than these folks. The chapel rivals anything I've seen in Europe--Stained glass all around (in the sanctuary, there's a glass of the Little Flower--she watches my Masses), stencil work on the ceiling and walls, a full-size altar with life-size Crucifix over it, gold leaf IHS and crosses in the sanctuary--actually the whole thing is really beyond verbal description. Saying Mass beneath that huge Crucifix is marvelous, as it's as if you were saying Mass at Christ's feet at the Crucifixion--the feet of the corpus are just inches above the tabernacle, and during the Consecration of the wine, it's reflected in the bottom of the Chalice--truly wonderful! The people are every bit as wonderful as the church, and are constantly asking what they can do to make my life more comfortable. And, my friend, I owe it to your publishing my letters--the man who contacted me read SDCN, and just called despite the letter stating that I was going to Reagan Wells on the off-chance that I may be interested. For the first time in my life, I'm truly happy and content.

Father, the story of this place is really amazing and inspiring. Here it is in a nutshell: The group consists of about 150, and 10 years ago they had a chance to buy a church for $20,000; they have put over $67,000 worth of remodeling into it, and guess what? It's completely paid for! The whys, hows, and wherefores of their story would indeed be an inspiration to Traditionalist groups, many of whom feel that they're too small to think big. I'm going to write a series of articles on "How We Did It, etc." and was wondering if you'd be interested in publishing them in SDCN. I really feel that it would be a boost to the Traditional Movement if more people knew their story--maybe we'd see more people worshipping in real churches instead of motel rooms, etc. Let me know what you think.

In IHS,
Father Donald K. Burda, Greenwood, IN

P.S. I'll be taking some photos in a week or so; will send you one when they're taken.

P.P.S. If you or any Traditionalist Priest are up this way, I can put you up for as long as you like -Have a sofa bed and lots of room!

Dear Father,

Nancy & I returned this week after three lovely days a Fairfield Pagosa. We have never been treated more royally. We swam, took whirl pool baths, skiied and just relaxed. Thanks so much.

We listened attentively to the salesman but bought nothing.

May God Bless.
Vic Humeniuk, Tucson, AZ

Editor's note: I own a white time week in a "condomenium" at Fairfield Pagosa near Pagosa Springs in southwestern Colorado. As a result I can help make arrangements for certain of my friends and subscribers to spend 4 days and 3 nights free at this resort, the catch being they must spend 2-3 hours one day listening to a salesman. I've got this "property" up for sale, but as long as I own it you may want to take advantage of this opportunity. Write or call me for a VIP Reservation form like I sent Vic & Nancy Humeniuk.

Thanksgiving Day,

Dear Father Jones:

Thank you very much for your letter of Nov. 17th. I am enclosing another donation right away because of your need for funds as you stated in your letter. Don't think much of the odd amount. You see, I am tithing and it just works out that way. I am helping several priests, all conservatives though. I give no money to the Establishment Church at all. I was hoodwinked like so many other Catholics who built churches, schools, fund raising, etc. and what did it get us? O Lord! How incredible the situation is!

Interesting comment you made about time. I have heard that in the latter times time would go swiftly, more so than before.

I have not heard of Father Placid White but Almighty God has certainly given him a long life.

Yes, I understand about the dumping of statues, altarware, etc. When I had my religious store a priest once brought to me a number of chalices, ciboriums, monstrances, etc. He wanted to sell them to "send the money to the missions" or some such thing. I called the local Chancery (Los Angeles) and the Secretary to the Cardinal said I could not buy them as they were consecrated. He was right of course. A few days later this priest came to pick them up again. What happened to them I don't know. I do know that at least one chalice was engraved with names of doners. This priest had a calling card. He was a Psychologist and wore a ring.

I was amazed when I read the story of you bagging a buck on the last day (St. Therese's Intercession?) and you dragging him for four miles to where your pickup truck was parked. Dear Father, you must be in terrific shape!

I am enclosing one of the booklets I had printed from your article in the "Newsnotes" and I am very sorry for the typos and the fact that the printer neglected to add my acknowledgement to you for the permission you graciously gave to print it. But you know Father, I have found recently, that you have to do things twice, whether it's printing, getting your car fixed, or whatever. I can send you a couple hundred if you want them. You can sell them for a dollar if you want. I have added several paragraphs on the back page, didn't think you'd mind.

Sincerely,
Vito Berardi

Dear Fr. Dan,

Greetings to you and your beloved guardian angel!

On behalf of Bishop George Musey I am sending to you the enclosed articles on Fr. Manuel who had an attempted assassination in Mexico. The priest's miraculous escape from death can only be attributed to God as you shall see through your perusal of these articles. Bishop Musey hopes that you can mention something in your newsletter to have more people pray for his painful recovery as well as the growth of true Catholicism in Mexico.

Father Manuel was ordained by Bishop Musey in 1984 at Fr. Nugent's chapel. Bishop Musey loaned him to Bishop Carmona for the work in Mexico. Bishop Musey did fly down to Mexico to see him the later part of January. His recovery is very painful.

Thank God we have wonderful priests alive today who spend their lives in keeping alive the "Faith of Our Father."

Best wishes to you, Father! May God continue to bless your work.

God Bless you,
Sr. Juanita Marie, Houston, TX

Assassination Attempt on Traditional Priest

(Translation of an article in the newspaper of Ometepec, Gro, Mejico)
THE VOICE OF OMETEPEC -- Sunday, January 18, 1987

Ometepec, Guerrero, the 17 of Jan., 1987

After a brilliant investigation brought to close by the Group of Judicial Police of the State, headed by C. Rafael Perez Rodriguez, it was stated that Prisciliano Silva Castaneda and Adulfo Nicolas Sixto Sanchez, according to the declarations sustained from the first, planned the assassination that was going to be accomplished against the Traditionalist priest of Guadalupe Victoria, Manuel Ojeda Alonso.

The actions took place in the village of Cruz Podrida, some 2 kilometers from Guadalupe Victoria, municipality of Xochistlahuaca, the past 10th of January at 4:00 p.m.

Prisciliano Silva Castaneda declares that on the date mentioned, the priest mentioned above was in the village of Cozoyoapan and since he already had the contract to kill him because the catechist of the modernist church of Zacualpan, Adulfo Nicolas Sixto Sanchez hired him, he went to catch up with the priest at a place called El Santiago. He was able to meet the victim who was riding a horse followed by two boys who walked behind him.

He said that, since he belongs to the same traditional group, the priest trusted him, and when they met began to speak as they moved on, until they reached the spot named Cruz Podrida, a solitary cross road. There he took out a 22 automatic gun, and shot at him 4 times; then the priest collapsed from his horse and still, Silva declares, "I intended to shoot at him once more when he was laying on the ground, but an unknown force prevented me and I could only run, while the 2 boys, also afraid, ran, and the priest remained there on the ground."

He declared that over a month ago, he made a contract with Adulfo Nicolas Sixto Sanchez to kill the priest, because he is not a good priest for he does not obey the pope, and they agreed that he would be paid 80,000 pesos (approx. $80 dollars) giving him 5,000 ahead of time and telling him that the other 75,000 would be given to him when the "job" was finished.

The priest received 4 shots which perforated his intestines. A car happened to drive by, and they took him to the clinic in Xochistlahuaca, where he was taken to emergency, but the doctors immediately wanted him taken to Ometepec because he was in urgent need of surgical assistance before developing peritonitis.

Since the shots came from a very short distance, the bullets remained lodged in his body, and were removed in the Sanatorium of Friendship, where even now he is found recuperating and out of danger.

Both the material author of these acts and his instigator are to be found in the prison of Ometepec, where the Judge sentenced them as responsible for the offences of wounds and homicide in the degree of attempted murder, but with the peralties of the law.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

March 19, 1987

Dear Father,

Thank you for your long letter dated 02/23/87. About this time, you should be enjoying Disneyland. I hope that the lines are not as long as they were back in July of 86, the date of my last visit there.

I'd be interested in your conclusions relative to Noah's Flood. I've dug into many subjects, but that's not one of them.

Two thoughts come to mind as I sit in front on my Commodore:

(1) For years I've been writing a weekly column for a newspaper back home (Northern Minn). Enclosed are a few copies. If they interest you, you are free to use them in Newsnotes.

(2) At 67 I've been searching for one final project to complete my tour on earth. I've often thought of this as Bert (our Shepherd) and I hike the trails in the hills surrounding Tucson. Enclosed is material suggesting that federal income taxes (on individuals and corps alike) plus gift and estate taxes be replaced with a sales (consumption) tax. The writer's logic makes a lot of sense to me, but is it a concept worth furthering? I subscribe to many publications (including Newsnotes) which condemn the present system, but offer nothing in its place. I believe that if the concept is good and the time is right, it will "snowball" into forcing the change.

Please take $10 out of the enclosed and place the following individual on the mailing list: Father Mike Deis....

Make it a good day.
Vic Humeniuk

Editors reply: I read with great interest your March 19th letter, your excellent NORTH WOODS LOGIC articles, and the very convincing 3 part article on a national sales tax to replace the graduated income tax. I also thank you very much for the $150 check and I will gladly put Father Mike Deis on my newsletter mailing list.

My typesetter is way behind, but if all works out, you may well see a couple of your NORTH WOODS LOGIC articles in the next issue of the SDCN. The graduated income tax has got to go! Replacing it with a national sales tax in the manner Christopher Stuart Young advocates is the best, obviously workable solution, I've heard yet. Our enemies will see the handwriting of their defeat on the wall if this should happen. Could be, though, that the predicted sudden fall of Mystery Babylon is around the corner. Maybe the computer and a major earthquake or whatever will see the whole system collapse in one hour of one day. It is my suspicion that nevertheless God will still have to chastize us via a Russian invasion which He tells about in Ezechial 38-39 before we can indeed implement a return to soundness in our government!

The Noah's Flood topic is so controversial and the ramifications concerning it so dramatic, I've decided to pull back a little on my talking about it. I've upset more than one traditional Catholic friend by going into it. Were the negro and oriental races wiped out by the Flood? If the Flood was only about 5000 years ago, as the Bible indicates, how could these races all descend from Noah in such a short time? Did God create the white race after he created the other races? Why does Genesis say Noah was perfect in his generations?....

My mother has been very weak lately and suffering some unusual spells (depression and heart palpilations). The whole winter has been an ordeal for her fighting a urinary infection. I drove down to Arizona to see her, as have several of my brothers and sisters. I also spent some time recently in Delta (her summer home) and did a little yard cleaning for her. My sister Cheryll flew to Phoenix and will be driving her back to Colorado the end of this month. She's 68 now and is still adjusting to being without my dad who died 2 years ago.

In mid-March I made an enjoyable 2600 mile trip with my sister Becky Moreland and her five children to Nevada, southern California, Arizona and New Mexico. Immediately after that I found myself on an adventurous 500 mile trip, part of it through a blizzard, with my old 4×4 pickup to get a used 350 engine and a set of good used tires for my sister Jean Davis. She moved from Westcliffe to Delta last fall, works 5 days a week running a computer at the local social services office, and still teaches via correspondence children from two traditional Catholic families in Wisconsin. Her own children she has had to put in the local public schools. It is a veritable struggle for her to make ends meet (which is no concern of her husband who left her a few years ago and moved in with someone else). The engine on her station wagon went "Kapoot" last fall, so I gave her my 1973

AN AMERICAN archeologist has at last found the tomb of the legendary King Arthur — and resting in the powdery skeleton hands of the fabled monarch is the mystical Sword Excalibur!

September 11, 1984 — SUN — — DAN DOLAN

Incredibly, its blade has remained razor sharp through the ages, and the molecular structure of its metal is totally baffling to modern science.

Space age engineers say it must have come from another world.

Stunning

Dr. Avery Johns made the stunning discovery not far from the coastal town of Aberstwyth in western Wales. The tomb itself is high in the nearby rugged Cambrian Mountains.

Among the finery and treasure in a second room of the underground mountain tomb is a simple silver chalice, which Dr. Johns believes is the Holy Grail.

The ancient British king is clasping on his chest a sword with a blade of a bright metal that has failed to rust for more than 14 centuries. Dr. Johns dates the find from the sixth century, A.D.

"There is no doubt in my mind that this is King Arthur holding his legendary sword, Excalibur," says Dr. Johns, reached in a brief telephone interview in Rome.

Dr. Johns was last with the American University in Rome. He is something of an academic maverick whose theories of ancient Britain have led him to break off from formal teaching roles.

For the past five years he has been searching for Arthur's tomb — as well as other relics — on a privately backed expedition.

• DR. JOHNS, THE SCIENTIST (right) who found the tomb and its historic contents, discusses his achievement with a colleague

"Everyone knows Arthur and his knights of the Round Table were searching for the Holy Grail. But no one knows that he found it. This unequivocally proves it."

Arthur's finery includes a complete suit of chain mail woven of solid gold.

If the grail is certified as the chalice Christ drank out of at the Last Supper, it will by itself rate as the archeological find of the century.

One of the most fascinating aspects of the find is that the big two-handed sword is of a metal so hard that it has confounded the metallurgists who have briefly examined and tested it.

"The best guess, according to these tests, is that it is some kind of alloy. Excalibur's steel is as hard as any tungsten alloy.

Secret heat

"This blade is far better than even the finest Japanese samurai blades or the best of the Toledo swordmakers. Whoever made this blade had the secret of generating heat more than 3,000 degrees Centigrade.

I suspect that this was made with the naked heat of the sun by a people with easier access to solar rays than we have here on earth.

"How they forged it will have to remain for a while one of the mysteries of archeology, like the pyramids."

On the blade is an inscription in ancient Brythonic: "Who holds this rules Briton," as Dr. Johns translates it.

'Weeping icon' reported

CHICAGO (NC)—Reports of a weeping icon at St. Nicholas Albanian Orthodox Church in Chicago have sparked the interest of Catholics — especially Hispanics and those of the Byzantine rite. "I would estimate that 50 to 60 percent of those coming to see the icon are Catholics. Monks, nuns, priests and lay people have come," said the Rev. Philip Koufos, the priest at St. Nicholas Albanian Orthodox Church who first reported the icon was weeping.

He said more than half a million pilgrims have journeyed to the small, 300-seat church in northwest Chicago since Dec. 5, the day he said he initially spotted the moisture seeping from Mary's eye on a 25-year-old painting of Mary and Jesus.

Chevy Impala with all its 335,000 miles. But when the transmission on it failed just after Becky and I returned from our trip, Jean was without wheels. She is five miles from the nearest grocery and her place of employment. So fortunately I found in Pueblo a good engine and set of tires for her station wagon. She's paying to have them installed, taking every spare cent she can scrape up or borrow. Such is life these days.

Every once in awhile things sort of pile up and letters somehow just find themselves stacked upon my desk unanswered for weeks or months. Some people, I've heard, get so little mail that it thrills them every time they get a personal letter. But too much of a good thing can sometimes cause problems. My mail box is usually crammed to capacity every day. I ask my two secretaries to handle anything pertaining to the Sangre de Cristo Newsnotes and whatever else they have time for. What tends to happen is that I spend so much of my waking hours dealing with the daily mail, and the backlog mail, that other duties and needs begin to suffer. So if per chance you don't hear from me for awhile, you'll know why.

"Did you hear about the chap who stayed up all night figuring out where the sun went when it went down?"

"No, what happened?"

"It finally dawned on him."

"Daddy, why did you clip this article out of THE WALL STREET JOURNAL? It's from the 02/26/87 issue and is entitled, 'Wrong-Way Corrigan'."

"The article was written by Doug Barnard Jr. Representative in Congress from Georgia. The Corrigan that the title makes reference to is Gerald Corrigan, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The 'wrong-way' relates to a previous Corrigan - a pilot - who flew across the Atlantic, while claiming that he thought he was flying in the opposite direction.

"I clipped it out because this statement appears in the article:

"His (Corrigan's) policy paper reveals a troubling concern within the Fed system over issues of payments - system risk, principally the risk to the banking and financial system as a whole from a massive breakdown in the electronic wire transfer networks that now handle more than $1 trillion daily in the U.S."

"It would appear, Virginia, that if the situation is bad enough for a Federal Reserve Bank president to consider it 'troubling', the concern must be very real. Electronic wire transfers are handled by computers. The networks operate very fast and very efficiently, but only as long as equipment and people running them function properly."

"You know about computers, Daddy. Do they have a reason to worry?"

"They certainly do. Corrigan's statement confirms what I read in the September 1986 issue of WASHINGTON REPORT:

"According to national security and terrorist experts, we face a danger that could be quite serious. Highly trained and sophisticated terrorists could create "COMPUTER VIRUS" and do serious damage in the U.S. These "VIRUS" computer programs would be entered into any number of our major computer systems, financial and military, to come alive at a given date and time in the future. They could then jump around in the basic computer data system and destroy or alter it so that it would create havoc beyond belief. Our sources say that government and financial institutions are quite concerned."

"Daddy, it's scary, isn't it!"

"Daddy, you favor replacing the present federal income tax with a sales tax, don't you?"

"Yes, I do, Virginia. What I would like to see is a 10 percent sales tax on goods and services in place of the present individual income tax, the corporate income tax, and gift and estate taxes. I believe that there are many reasons why the sales tax is a better way of collecting taxes. Let's consider a few:

"1. There would be no April 15 tax deadline. Instead, we'd be current all of the time; no withholding, no estimating of taxes, no waiting for refunds from over withholding or over estimating. Paying one's tax would be as simple as buying a tank full of gas. When we buy gas we pay our state and federal road tax.

"2. There would be no more tax forms to figure, or file, or records to keep for corporations and individuals. Complying with present tax laws, according to estimates, costs Americans $20 billion each year. Records stored by the US Treasury occupy 3.4 million cubic feet of space. What a joy it would be to do away with all of this waste of time and money.

"3. There would be no more income tax audits of individuals or corporations. Once again, our private lives would be free from government snoopers.

"4. There would be no need for tax shelter schemes, offshore banking to hide funds, tax planners, and other related means of reducing or avoiding payment of taxes based upon income.

"5. The three branches of the federal government would have more time to devote to other matters such as reducing waste in government. There would be no more pressures by special interest groups for favored treatment.

"6. There would be no more income tax courts which cost us dearly in time and money, including the incarceration of violators. No more typing up estates in probate tax courts.

"7. Those who derive income from the 'underground economy' or from illegal sources could no longer avoid paying taxes. Foreign visitors would be taxed the same as everyone else."

"That's quite an impressive list, Daddy."

"Daddy, why is this clipping out of the 06/27/86 WALL STREET JOURNAL about a bank failing in your 'computer crime' folder? There's not a word in it about computers and/or crime."

"Read it again, Virginia. This is the portion that caught my attention:

"An emergency examination of the bank (which failed) this week showed it was insolvent, according to Thomas B. Miller, Kentucky's financial institutions commissioner. "These conditions can primarily be attributed to a lack of internal controls that resulted in certain deposits not being recorded on the books of the bank," Miller said.

"What does that tell us, Virginia? The examiners discovered that the bank was broke because certian deposits were not recorded. This alone will not break a bank. It might make a horrible mess in the accounting department, but that's all. We must conclude that the money which was deposited but not recorded also vanished."

"Let me explain what I mean. You are familiar with check-out counters. Suppose that on a particular day, the cash register did not work properly, recording only every other sale. As long as the clerk was honest, would the store lose any money? No. But, on the other hand, if the clerk knew this was happening and pocketed the unregistered funds, couldn't a lot of money disappear with no trace of how much or where it went?"

"One of the pioneers in the microcomputer industry, Virginia, was Adam Osborne. He invented the revolutionary portable computer, the Osburne 1. Among many other accomplishments, he wrote a book: RUNNING WILD. In this book he cautions that three areas should not be computerized: (1) bank money transfers; (2) the stock market; (3) elections."

"Daddy, it sounds to me like he knew what he was talking about."

MASS SHOPPING!

Many conscientious Catholics who can hardly bear the abuses in their home parishes have written to us, asking "Where can I find a devout and holy Mass to attend in my area?" They are perplexed by the contradictory answers they get when they ask the same question of many local clergy.

For example, members of our Society have told us they have heard these answers:

a) You must attend and support your local parish.
b) If you don't like it here, go where you please.
c) You can pick and choose as you want.
d) You can go to the Traditional Mass in Latin, if you can find one. (This answer has been given by priests who say the Novus Ordo, even though their bishops may declare otherwise.)

No wonder Catholics are confused!

We seem to have been thrown on our own resources, so to speak. And each one of us must exercise our best judgment, acting in conscience, to worship God in the ways that we have always been taught by the Church.

To help you exercise your options as carefully as possible, we suggest that you send for The Catholic Traditionalist Directory, if you haven't already done so. We are not connected with it in any way, and therefore are not responsible for its contents, nor the statements made by its editor. However, we do admire his courage and great devotion to the Faith. He is a professor at a small university, and will send you a copy free of charge.

We also suggest that you send him a donation to help pay his out-of-pocket expenses for printing and mailing. (The Directory covers the entire world and is packed into 100 pages. It would probably cost you well over $10, if it were sold in bookstores.)

ATTEND THE TRUE MASS

Papal Bull "Quo Primum" Council of Trent July 14, 1570. Clearly making use of his authority as Vicar of Christ and Head of His Church, Pope Pius V decreed infallibly that no other formula other than the "Missal" (used in the Traditional Latin Mass liturgy) may ever be read or sung ("and shall have the force of law in perpetuity"). Clearly the "New Mass" violates this decree. (Consequence: Apostacy)

EVEN IF CATHOLICS FAITHFUL TO TRADITION ARE REDUCED TO A HANDFUL, THEY ARE THE ONES WHO ARE THE TRUE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST. (From a letter of St. Athanasius to his flock)

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

November 11, 1986

Dear Father Dan,

Please find enclosed I.M.O. for 10 dollars, as payment for another 4 issues of SDCN. My subscription expired with the number 50 issue, recently received.

Hope you and yours are all well. I will keep this letter as short as possible (well, nearly!) as I know that you do not have enough hours in the day.

If I might make a suggestion for SDCN (I'm sure you get lots!), I would like to see more about the bishops consecrated, either mediately, or immediately, from Archbishop Thuc. Particularly photos. I have seen, in SDCN, a photo of Bishop Musey. I have seen in 'Einsicht' photos of Bishops Carmona (good), Zamora (poor), Bravo and Martinez (both good). This refers to the quality detail. I have, so far, seen nothing of Bishops Guerard des Lauriers, Storck, Vezelis, Mackenna, Altenbach (R.I.P.) and Siebert (R.I.P.). If you have any photos of any of these, which would be suitable for reproduction, I'm sure they would be very much appreciated. We "Thuc-ites" are very few and far between in these islands, and do tend to feel a bit out of it. Most trads. over here tend to support M. Lefebvre, although, more now seem to be getting wise to the society and its antics (I hope that doesn't sound uncharitable, it's not meant to be, more sorrowful really).

In connection with the above, I was very sorry to hear of the deaths of Bishops Altenbach and Siebert; two staunch servants of the Church, although I was never acquainted with either of them, only by reputation. I hope the next issue will have some mention of these sad losses. I did hear that Bishop Bravo Valades was very ill, but have heard nothing recently (Catholics Forever). Also, perhaps some mention of Bishop Robert's consecration. I hope he got some snaps (photos) of them. I can't say I'm too keen on Bishop G. des L.'s weird 'Cassian' theory, about the 'pope that isn't,' as it were.

I recently bought a book over here about St. Joan of Arc. Published by Tan:: so it should be OK, I suppose. Anyway, I'll close here. God bless. Keep the flag flying.

Yours,
John Rowley,

CATHOLIC

Mr. Peter McKenna, a correspondent in New Zealand, sent me the February 1987 issue of CATHOLIC, a Traditional Catholic publication from Australia. Yes, I know most of those who subscribe to my newsletter do not have the time or finances to get and read the many good Catholic publications now serving the scattered flock of "Remnant Catholics" around the world. When I started the Sangre de Cristo Newsnotes in 1973 there were only a handful of English-speaking traditional Catholic publications and half of these I didn't learn about until later. Most "Catholics" back then never heard of these publications, and most today still don't know about the majority of them, and probably never read any of them. But for us few (and our numbers seem to be growing) who still hold to the Catholic Faith of our fathers and of the Apostles and of the Doctors of the Church, it is imperative that we read and take an interest in one (or more) such publications, wouldn't you agree?

In any case, it rejoices my heart each time I learn about a good publication that is serving the needs of part of the Mystical Body of Christ. "No man hates his own body, but cherishes and takes care of it." On wedding days we hear something like that in the epistle reading in which St. Paul urges husbands to love their wives. I certainly don't expect my readers to jump on every publication bandwagon that I might mention in these pages, but I do know that some of you like to "stay abreadst", as they say, and check out the offerings. So for you I here include the address of the USA agent for this apparently monthly (I have only the Feb. 1987 issue number 50) 12-page traditional Catholic tabloid: Mrs. Diedre P. Thompson, 8509 Beverly Blvd. No. 89, Pico Rivera, CA 90660. Subscription is $12 U.S. a year.

Catholic is apparently put out by people who are served by the priests of the Society of St. Pius X. The Feb. issue had many good articles, including one on the Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatuis. Father Barielle, the priest who introduced the Society of St. Pius X to these Spiritual Exercises, also introduced me to them when I was a seminarian at Louvain (1964-1968).

Henry Webber, time management consultant: "Goofing off on the job is valuable because it is an acknowledgment that you've got things under control. People who never goof off don't feel they have things under control. Goofing off can be a chance to check your priorities."

TEACHING OUR LITTLE ONES

A.M.D.G. (Ad Majorem Dei Gloriam)
(To the Greater Glory of God)

From the first centuries great stress was laid on religious training in the family. In the writings of the Fathers baptismal sponsors are frequently reminded of their serious responsibility. We are assured by conciliar decrees and like documents which repeatedly stressed the importance of parents and god-parents instructing their charges.

In Luther's day, according to the introduction to the Catechism of the Council of Trent, beginning religious training in the home was not overlooked. Cochlaius, in 1533 says the children had absorbed their religion as they drank their mother's milk.

The thirteenth century saw the rise of the great mendicant Orders founded for the purpose of preaching. They spread throughout Europe so completely that it could be said as in the days of the Apostles, their voice was heard in all the earth. Contrary to the charge that the teaching of religion was neglected and also that Luther orignated the catechism, from the ninth century on, many works in Latin and the new European tongues abounded.

Throughout the centuries many catechisms were used to help with the instruction of the Faithful, and disseminated in thousands of copies by the patient labor of the monks. Then were erected and established the many schools and colleges out of which grew the seats of learning in Europe. After this came the magnicent churches and cathedrals and religious art and music, a living testimony of the intense faith of the people.

The Catechism of the Council of Trent is a work of exceptional authority combining solid doctrine and practical usefulness. From beginning to end it reflects the light of faith, devotion and piety. With this in mind we wish it to be the basis of our little game to teach tiny Catholics as they read the tenets of our faith in the little books with the Big Print.

In this day when our young so seldom are shown these truths, how edifying to be exposed to them in infancy when their brain circuits are developing and they can learn with such ease and are more anxious to learn than at any other time in their lives.

Editor's note: See The Baby Game on page 6 of the December 1986 issue No. 51 of the SDCN. I'm surprised how many people are as skeptical and even more so than I was that little pre-school children can and should learn to read. Mrs. Sharkey is fighting an uphill battle on this project, which convinces me all the more that it is most important and worthwhile. Won't you write and give her a little support and encouragement.

Dear Father,

Thanks for sending a copy of SANGRE DE CRISTO NEWSNOTES. It is a very nice publication.

Enclosed is a mailing for January of FINANCIAL NEWS ANALYSIS a long-range support for the Lincoln dollar.

The reason is that dollars circulating as bank debt are the cause of inflation and the economic problems the country has endured since the earliest years of its history.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!
Edward T. Yorke, M.D.

Come, Holy Ghost, fill the hearts of Thy faithful and kindle in them the fire of Thy love.

Send forth Thy Spirit, and they shall be created;

And Thou shalt renew the face of the earth.

Let us pray.

O God, who didst teach the hearts of Thy faithful people by sending them the light of Thy Holy Spirit, grant us by the same Spirit to have a right judgment in all things, and evermore to rejoice in His holy comfort. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Mrs.Heidi Hagen,

Dear Mrs.Hagen,

I thank you very much for your interesting letter, dated 9 Dec.1986, and can tell you right away that I approve of the proposed meeting of the Thuc-line bishops and supporters and would like to attend if this is possible.

Very early in 1986 I actually wrote to Fr.McKenna as he then was proposing exactly such a meeting and suggesting certain necessary actions that should be taken or discussed. I will repeat them here and add others for your consideration and comments.

The meeting should be convened and advertised as a gathering of Roman Catholics who remain completely loyal to the Holy Mass, Laws, Teachings, Traditions, and Practices, of the Catholic Church which this Church has adhered to for centuries past and adhered to at the time of the death of Pope Pius XIIth in 1958.

Those permitted to attend should be Thuc-line bishops and priests plus other priests and lay-people who have declared their sede-vacantiste views and demonstrated their absolute refusal of the N.O.M. (In my opinion, and in logic, any Catholic who refuses, even partially, the authority and example of Wojtyla is, ipso facto, a sedevacantiste, even though he or she may hotly deny this.)

Great care must be taken to exclude Conciliar spies, infiltrators, trouble-makers, cranks, and men ordained in the New Ordination Rite of the Conciliar Church and posing as priests. (Such men could be allowed to attend provided they renounced their claim to be priests of the Catholic Church)

In the event of Messrs.Lefebvre and Castro Mayer, or any other bishop or priest, making a declaration that they have adopted the Sedevacantiste position they should be given invitations to attend the meeting and/or give their support and co-operation to the apostolate of its members.

Once the meeting is assembled all present should be called upon to make a written and signed endorsement of the Declaration made by Mgr.Thuc in Munich on 25 February 1982.

Similarly, they should make a written affirmation that Thuc-line consecrations and ordinations are valid, and the meeting should declare that "Being properly consecrated into the Apostolic Succession and faithful administrators of the Sacraments, Laws, Teachings, and Traditions, of the Holy Catholic Church, these bishops are endowed with the Moral and Episcopal authority the Church attaches to their rank together with the awful responsibility to "Restore all things in Christ"(and to Christ) Confirm the Brethren, and Stand Fast in the Faith." " A bishop must be without crime." Titus I-7.

The meeting should make a Declaration that, in view of the apparent non-existence of any other body possessing better qualifications, those present, being gathered together in the Name of Our Lord, (Matt.18-20), as a body speak in the name and capacity of the One, Holy, Catholic, and Apostolic Church founded by Him. Speaking as such they affirm their right and duty, under the guidance of the Holy Ghost, to continue to choose and appoint its Hierarchy.

Should the assembled bishops and faithful proceed to the election of a leader, and I favour this step, I suggest that the selection MUST be done by drawing lots; thus following Apostolic precedent(Acts I-26), opening the proceedings to the operation of the Holy Ghost, and completely ruling out all charges or possibility of vote-rigging.

The meeting should also declare that, in view of the undeniable fact that the Second Vatican Council was the instrument devised to initiate a process which has led to the disobedience of Church Laws and an almost complete abandonment of the Holy Mass, Teachings, Traditions, Practices, and Faith of the Eternal Catholic Church in Catholic churches, this assembly of the Catholic Church refuses every change, direction, and instruction imposed in these churches since the death of Pope Pius XIIth and,in due course,will judge and condemn those responsible for summoning and continuing this false Council even though their apostasy,disobedience,heresies,and other evil doings have already excommunicated them from the Church and thus made it an act of obligation for every Catholic to refuse to follow and support them in their evil pursuit of the destruction of the Catholic Church. (John 3-II. Gal. I-8. John 2-IO/II)

The chosen leader would be required to set up and direct a small secretariat to carry out the duties of administration,collect and provide information,aid co-ordination of enterprises,organise co-operation and recruitment,and seek generally to ensure the best use of the resources available to us.

For example,lists of those Mass Centres and chapels served by Thuc-line priests and sympathetic(pre I969)priests should be made and grouped in areas.

Where possible,and agreed,bishops should be allocated to serve these areas.

At this stage they would have territorial responsibility but not territorial authority.

All priests in the organisation who have used the N.O.M. in the past must undertake to never do so again.

Those attending the meeting,and other friends,should be requested to tell the secretariat of the names of priests who may be willing to join our Catholic apostolate and/or accept the ministrations of our bishops.

Urgent attention should be given to the establishment of good seminaries with sound, Traditional,and united faculties.

The Church should refrain from entering into time-wasting correspondence,discussions, and debates with members or representatives of the Conciliar Church;taking heed of the advice and exhortations expressed in Cor.6-I4. John 2-IO/II. and Matt.I2-30.

The Church should re-issue the pre-I958 Penny Catechism and seek to see it distributed as widely as possible.

The clergy must seek to ensure that Holy Mass is celebrated in as many locations as possible;as often as possible;and with the assistance of as many people as possible.

Our Lord told us "And I,if I be lifted up(in the Mass and on Calvary)will draw all things to Me." Thus,and only thus,will the One,Holy,Catholic,and Apostolic,Church, thrive again,draw countless souls to Him,and secure the numerical and financial support necessary for its survival and expansion.

The servants of Baal have seized power in our churches-in Rome itself-in an act of treachery and diabolically inspired boldness and deceit.

Today,we must defend the Faith and the future welfare of the world with a boldness that excels theirs. Not only defend it but PROCLAIM IT to the world; not hiding our light under a bushel but giving witness to the Light-Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Adjutorium nostrum in nomine Domini. Christus Vincit. Christus Regnat.Christus Imperat.

Spera in Deo. Yours very sincerely and Faithfully,

CLERGYMEN IN PREVENTIVE MEDICINE, Part III

by Father Ralph L. Day, 6527 Douglas, Boise ID 83704

People who read the Bible seldom apply what they read in their lives. To read and comprehend the Bible seems difficult to some people, because they read the words, without meditating upon them. And, for some people, to read the Bible is a tremendous, tedious job, and there are millions of people who have never read The Book, nevertheless having, at least, one of them at home.

Well, as a doctor of Naturopathic Medicine, and as a priest, I can honestly assure you that if people would read the Bible, and apply all the teachings of "The" Book, in their own lives, the world would have less diseases, less degeneration, and people at large would live the allotted span of time on earth in much better health.

So let's read the Bible, and think in what we read, willy? EZEKIEL 47:12 "Along both banks of the river, fruit trees of every kind shall grow; their leaves shall not fade, nor their fruit fall. Every month they shall bear fresh fruit, for they shall be watered by the flow from the sanctuary. Their fruit shall serve for food, and their leaves for medicine" Monsignor Sebastian Kneipp, "the Father of Naturopathy", a Bavarian Catholic who made of natural healing his ministry in life, use to quote from The Bible; he mentioned from Psalms: 104:14 "He caused the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of man: that he may bring forth good out of the earth"; and in the Book of Romans 14:2,3: "For one believeth that he may eat all things: another who is weak eateth not, and let not him which eatheth not judge him that eatheth; for God hath received him". And in Genesis 1:26:"God created man in His own image, and He tells us what to eat to be healthy -- herbs, fruit as found in the same chapter, verse 29. In Daniel 1:10 to 20 we read a very interesting story: Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon ordered his chief chamberlain Ashpenaz to gather some of the Israelites of noble blood, clean, healthy, intelligent, to be trained for his service in the palace; Daniel was one of the chosen. Daniel begged to let him eat whatever he wanted, and instead of eating meat and other food, he preferred to eat vegetables and drink water; after 10 days of being tested Daniel was the best.

With the Bible in mind, and Nature as orientator, we should look to the simple, humble GRASS, and we will wonder how God has provided to us one of the best nourishing foods, in the cheapest, easy way to farm, even in the limited space of an apartment: SPROUTING GRASSES.

SPROUTS - said Dr. Clive McCay of Cornell University - are like 'a miniture transmitter-receiver station that reacts to the emotional level of its immediate surroundings. Sprouts are very sensitive to electro-magnetic orientation, and a change in their orientation will slow their growth. Germinated legumes (sprouts) will prevent and cure scurvy, as was proven by Charles Curtis, a surgeon in the British navy (1807). Sprouts, on the other hand, have high enzymatic activity, among them "amylase" which acts upon the starches; "protease" to digest proteins; "lipase" a fat-splitting protein; "coagulase" which coagulate milk or clot blood; "emulsin" which acts upon sugar; "invertase" which converts cane sugars into dextrose. Ernest T. Krebs, Jr. biochemist, Cancer Researchist, believes that Sprouts have "anti-cancer" factors. Let's focus on GRASS for a moment. We read in The Bible in the Book of Daniel (4:29) King Nebuchadnezzar, who was a wreck physically and mentally, was advised by Heaven to eat grass as did the oxen; following the advice, he made a complete recovery".

SPROUTED GRASS has protective liver action. Grasses "if they have not been sprayed with poisonous chemicals" are non-toxic. In times of emergency, a nation can recognize an unusual, easily accesible food source. In 1942 England, following Professor John B. Johnstone Wallace, of Corness University, during the WW2, mixed grass with flour and baked soda biscuits, saying: "Green grass is nutritious and tastes real fine". Grasses have "clorophyll" clorophyll absorbs energy from the sun and in some unknown way uses it for the manufacture of sugar, starch and proteins. Clorophyll is a chemical substance which, in chemical structure, resembles "hemoglobin" of the human blood. Clorophyll is effective in a therapeutic way and has been used in medical research to fight infections in severe cases of osteomilelytis, sinusitis, rhinitis, etc. (R. Ridpath MD, T.C. Davies MD). Burgi, MD and coworkers have used Clorophyll in anemia, tuberculosis, cardiac disease, arteriosclerosis and mental depression. Clorophyll has an "anti-radiation effect", which is important in view of the present day atomic research and production of all types of atomic weapons, and excessive use of atomic energy all over the world, and use of radiation in food! A Clorophyll diet (in other words, eating Grass, i.e.) could be a help for survival! Animals of experimentation in medical laboratories, submitted to lethal doses of radiation, have been given Clorophyll reducing the death of the laboratory animals 50 percent. The animals received a diet which consisted of broccoli, cabbage, and alfalfa, containing Clorophyll, reducing the effect of radiation. In 1961, Dr. Ann Wigmore from Bloomfield Laboratories, High Bridge, New Jersey confirmed the efficiency of Clorophyll rich wheat grass in neutralizing the toxcity of Sodium Fluoride, which is a rat poison and it is used in "water fluoridation!!! (drinking water!). By using wheatgrass which is rich in calcium phopsphate, it would remove any free fluoric acid and its negative charge to an alkaline calcium phosphate fluoride combination with a positive reaction.

Grass, grains, seeds, legumes or nuts can be sprouted very easily and cheap in any apartment house. A ¼ cup of lentils will fill a quart size jar with sprouts in 4 days at a cost of 5 cents per pound. Sprouts -- even of simple grass -- can be fun and highly nutritious. You can sprout almonds, soy beans, lentils, alfalfa, pears (whole green), mung beans, clover, lettuce, garbanzo, radish, etc. Example: sprout seeds which you can start using in 3-5 days: plus the above mentioned, sunflower seed, squash seed, pumpkin seed. How to start? You can use a Mason Jar (bottle method), place the proper amount of seeds, i.e. alfalfa: 1 tablespoon per quart; lentils 2 tablespoons per quart; garbanzo ½ cup per quart; radish 2 tablespoons per quart, etc. Let them soak in pure distilled water (no tap water) for at least 12 hours. Just put the seeds in the bottle add the pure water and let them soak 12 hours. Cover the bottle with a piece of nylon stocking held in place with an elastic band, so air can pass through freely. Pour water in jar and gently shake then pour off and lay jar on its side. Do this 2 or 3 times a day. You could try to purchase the booklet "SPROUT HANDBOOK" by A. Stuart Wheelwright, second edition 1968, Research Technical Service, 3747 Quincy Ave., Ogden, UT or any other book of sprouting on sale in all Health Food Stores. Orientals have used sprouts for more that 4,000 years. One pound of seed will produce twenty pounds of food. This idea can permit you to realize that in emergencies, you can survive for a long time without groceries, if you just have a few pounds of seeds, of diverse types, and close to you you find a source of cristallyne water (as in the mountains). Not only can you save your life and your family, but...at any given moment, if you are without work, or going through difficult times, you can survive for just cents a day eating sprouts. Besides being an excellent food source of virtually every vitamin, complete proteins, minerals, polyunsaturated oils, sprouts are very digestable. Be sure to obtain your seeds or dried beans at a Health Food Store, they should be fresh, unsprayed and packaged as food.

YOUR BABY

A.M.D.G.

Today, in our paper, along with much disturbing news we read about all the latch-key children, the need to tax groceries to build more jails, the drug and alcohol problem even in elementary schools, a kind of music called "vulgarity" there is no end!

More emphasis has been put upon your women becoming doctors and lawyers achieving in the work-place. Where are the women who are interested in being a wife and mother? Many, after they succeed in their chosen profession or goal find out, before it is too late, that they want a husband and family and want to be the best mother they can be. After spending precious years on careers they need a guide, which The Super Baby Game becomes.

With the Game are the Instructions. The art of mothering is a main part, because while baby is learning to pray and read he is also being guided by mother. Baby is being nurtured, from the unmedicated birth, if at all possible, with the fine music and literature of the church, read aloud while baby was waiting to be born, to the soothing atmosphere of love and attention, content with mommy and daddy. It is to doctor's advantage if baby is not nursed, in many ways, for when a baby is nursed usually there are few if any problems with allergies and sickness. Mother is in complete control and of course since God tailored the milk especially for your special baby, all the nutrients that are needed are there with the food God provided and no need to prepare anything. Since it is all so well planned, from the closeness of mother and child that all important bonding occurs.

TONGUE OF THE SERPENT

St. Anthony's Apostolate
Post Office Box 271
Kerkhoven, MN 56252

September 19 ought to be a very important day in the lives of Catholics. It was on that date, in 1846, that the Blessed Virgin Mary appeared on the mountain at La Salette. Why, then, isn't this date well known? Partly because the apparition isn't known by many, and of the remainder of mankind familiar with this apparition, many hold it in lesser esteem than they should. The discredited way with which this apparition is regarded gives one reason to suspect that La Salette is caught in the Tongue Of The Serpent.

Perhaps it was only the dramatic license of some early "horse opera" script writer that leads us to credit the Indians with referring to liars as those who "Ugh! Speakum with forked tongue." But think for a moment. Who is the "father of lies?" Did he not assume the form of a serpent when tempting Eve? And a serpent has, you guessed it, a forked tongue! The serpent's tongue is bifurcated, i.e. divided into two branches, or prongs. So is the apparition of La Salette caught between two prongs now. The two parts of the lying tongue entrapping La Salette, especially its Secret, are (1) an attack upon the character of the seers, and (2) an attack upon the Secret (or message) itself.

What better way to heap scorn upon the Secret, indeed the whole affair of La Salette, than to discredit the witnesses? The boy seer, Maximin Giraud, allegedly ended up an alcoholic boozehound. The girl seer, Melanie Calvat, was made out insane by her own Bishop, or at best "unstable." Due to space limitations, this paper will deal with Melanie and her Secret to be made public, instead of Maximin and his private Secret, although it was given to Pope Pius IX, as was Melanie's.

Pius IX answered Melanie's detractors with, "Melanie is a good girl." He even went so far as to relieve her of her religious vows when, to her enemies displeasure, keeping her cloistered would have helped quash the Secret. (Editor's note: Compare Pius IX's action of freeing a seer of the B.V.M. to spread Her message in the world, with that of the Vatican II organization's imprisonment of Fatima's Sister Lucy, which requires a "pass" from the Vatican to see her, as if she was an incarcerated, convicted murderer. What kind of people do such a thing? The same kind that keep the "light" of the B.V.M.'s Fatima Secret hidden under a bushel. But, that's the subject of another article.) Melanie said: "His Holiness Pius IX relieved me of my vows as such could not be kept in the world: he said that I couldn't accomplish my mission in the cloister and he granted me privileges I would never have dared ask him."

"What more are we waiting for, inasmuch as Holy Church has shown herself in favour insofar as She can where revelations are concerned? Pius IX ordered the Bishop of Grenoble to build a beautiful Church on the mountain of La Salette. Leo XIII crowned the statue and gave the sanctuary the title of Basilica. What more do we need to beat our breasts, to admit that all, all of us, have sinned, all of us have provoked God's justice, all of us have set our lips to the poisoned fount of our depraved passions, drunkenness from which plunges us into darkness? Whoever is ill-willed in regulating his life according to the law of God, according to the maxims of the Gospel, will always find reasons for doubting everything he wants to be in doubt about; the faith of these people is not a sanctifying faith..."

"Alas, the bishops, those who considered themselves referred to in the Secret, are the enemies of this merciful Secret, just as the high priests condemned the divine Saviour to death!... And inasmuch as the Mother of God and of all Christians by adoption at the foot of the Cross has recommended that her message in its entirety be made known to her people, what are we waiting for to obey the Virgin Mother, seeing that every day we behold the punishments announced by the Secret taking place?" (Written by Melanie to her director, Abbe Combe, in 1903; cf. Documents Pour Servir a l'Histoire Reelle de La Salette, Nouvelles Editions Latines, Paris, 1963-66)

Some thought Melanie "made up" the Secret, feeling that the B.V.M. could never have said anything derogatory of the clergy. It is most unfortunate that people tend to forget the plain and simple fact that the overwhelming majority of heresies stem not from the laity, but originate in the clergy only to later infect the laity. "No, no, the Seat of Wisdom Never spoke ill of the Ministers of the Altar! Mercifully, Mary, Patroness of France, Queen of the Catholic clergy pointed out the diseases infecting the souls of the pastors of God's people. Those who have forgotten prayer and penance and filled their hearts with affection for transitory things, their faith has cooled... Instead of rebelling, they should have entered into themselves, revived their faith, their charity, wisely regulating their conduct in accordance with the examples of Jesus, our divine Master and model." (cf. Letter to Fr. Combe, September, 1902)

Houded and badgered, even excommunicated by one French bishop, Melanie fled incognito to Italy. It was there, with the aid and protection of Italian prelates, she endeavored to publish the Secret. Regarding her "excommunication," she knew well the extent of the Masonic control of the French bishops. Excommunication is no new tool in the bag of tricks used by the worm-like traitors burrowed deep within the bosom of the hierarchy, nor are high-ranking traitors anything new. Judas Iscariot, traitor, was one of the original 12 Apostles, chosen by the all knowing Saviour as an everlasting example to us that the highest ranks may be infiltrated. St. Athanasius was excommunicated by the Arianists. His Holiness, Innocent II, was excommunicated by the Jewish Pierleone, antipope Anacletus II. (We are indeed aware that the "Remnant" has recently printed a statement to the effect that a lawfully elected pope cannot be an antipope. However, the fact remains, and the precedent has been set, when Pierleone was elected by an overwhelming majority of the Cardinals, he earned for himself the title of "antipope" not for invalid election, but for attempted destruction of the Church)

Approving of Melanie every bit as much as Pius IX, Leo XIII summoned her to Rome. It was 1879, and the Holy Father conferred with Melanie for no less than 6 months regarding both the Secret and the rule for the religious order that the B.V.M. had given Melanie. This order never materialized, despite several attempts, and no current religious order, despite the incorporation of the name La Salette in their title, follows this rule.

Was Melanie the raving lunatic we are led to believe she was? The aged Fr. Rigaux, Melanie's last director, revealed something not found in most literature concerning Melanie: "In the 48 years that I've been a priest, I've known and directed some very beautiful souls. I dare state before God, Who will soon judge me, that never have I encountered a soul so humble, gentle, pure, obedient, a virgin so pure, a character so strong, a victim so resigned in frightful trials, a martyr in body, bearing the stigmata from her tenderest years." (Our emphasis) Holy St. Pius X, whom we dare title "Hammer of Modernists," before dying of a broken heart, on reading an account of Melanie's life in 1910, exclaimed to the Bishop of Altamura, in whose diocese she died and was buried, "La nostra Santa!" The saintly Pontiff who wished "To Restore All Things in Christ" suggested to this Bishop that the cause for Melanie's beatification be introduced, immediately. And with these words and deeds of Christ's true Vicars, we bring to a close our feeble attempt to unravel the first prong of the Tongue Of The Serpent, the proing that vilifies the courier in order to debase the Message.

The second prong of the evil tongue is, again, to unleash an attack upon the Secret itself. The enemy of truth, the serpent, has his earthly allies. These allies can be broken down into two subdivisions. Firstly, there are those "in the know," i.e. those individuals that know the truth, yet, have willingly decided to suppress the truth and, often, promote falsehood in its place. Since they already know the truth, and have chosen to stifle it, the best we can do is hope and pray for the conversion of their hearts while shunning them. This little paper may bother them, perhaps, and may even go so far as to anger them. It will not change them. But there is a second group. These people honestly believe that they are doing the right thing in disregarding La Salette. The first group, "in the know," "feeds a line" to the second group. In the name of obedience, the honest-but-ignorant people are deceived. If they only knew the other side of the story, then they could judge the evidence for themselves., For these folks, this paper is intended.

Some months ago, a man sent us a book he'd written. On page 18 we read: "neither will we bother to scrutinize the unpublished secret of Fatima," (So far, so good; you shouldn't "scrutinize" what isn't published. Pray tell me, how does one go about to "scrutinize, v.t., to inspect or examine closely," that which has not been published, and therefore he hasn't got? -ed.) "the message of La Salette suppressed by the Holy Office in 1915,..." In the same paragraph, "Obedience ... the indisputable sign of a forked tail" (I thought it was a forked tongue and a pointed tail, live and learn! -ed.) "acrid smell, and cloven hoof in all the children of Satan who dare to spurn it." If blind obedience is the solution, then a young son, ordered by a parent (Fourth Commandment) to murder some innocent person (violate the Fifth Commandment) can "get away with murder," as the saying goes. Should Caiphas, the holder of a legitimately constituted office of authority, have been obeyed, unconditionally? Should the letter of the law of obedience be used as a pretext to violate the spirit of the law of doing that which is right? "And calling them, they charged them not to speak at all, nor teach in the name of Jesus. But Peter and John answering, said to them: If it be just in the sight of God, to hear you rather than God, judge ye." (Acts iv, 18 and 19) "But Peter and the Apostles answering, said: We ought to obey God, rather than men." (Acts, v, 29) But taking heed of the Secret of La Salette is not an act of disobedience, justifiable or otherwise. That is what someone, or something, wants us to believe though.

It is certainly true that some high-ranking prelates wanted the Secret put on the Index. As a matter of fact, they even threatened to withhold Peter's Pence from the impoverished Apostolic treasury. To appease them, Cardinal Caterini sent a letter from the Inquisition in 1880, forbidding Melanie to write or publish further re the Secret. The existing, published Secret was not placed on the Index. The Secret had been delivered orally hundreds of times by Melanie, and was first published in 1873 under the Imprimatur of Bishop of Naples. It appeared the second time under the Imprimatur of Salvatore Zola, Bishop of Lecce, Italy, who granted his permission after consulting with Leo XIII on the matter. This was then reprinted, "ne varietur," at Lyon, France, a few short months before Melanie died alone and unattended, on December 14, 1904. So very many people, assuredly of good will, are reluctant to read, much less believe, this Secret because they think it is, or was, on the Index. It just isn't true! Yes, some publications dealing with the Secret were condemned for good reason. But the Secret itself was never on the Index. There is, at least in 1974 there was, a letter extant from Fr. Lepidi, Master of the Sacred Palace, dated December 16, 1912, to Cardinal Lucon officially stating that the Secret was never condemned by either the Index or the Holy Office. The Congregation of the Index had examined the Secret and found no changes necessary, such examination done before 1904.

After Leo XIII initially read the Secret, not only did he raise no objection, he ordered a version with fuller explanations be undertaken! The Bishops of Arras and Bayonne granted their Imprimaturs in 1893, to be followed by many more. When Fr. Rigaux wrote around the turn of the century, he stated that he had in his possession some "28 editions of the Secret, with Imprimatur from Cardinals and Bishops."

The Caterini letter weighed heavily on Melanie, and she did not publish, in order to comply. "As for me, I want to be submissive to the Holy Church of God." Yet, if she had been sure "that the Caterini letter was unknown to the Holy Father, then I would be free to write and would write." (Letter to A.M. Schmid, of the periodical Legitimite, July 25, 1896)

She once wrote, "With Imprimatur and all the Imprimaturs, I wonder who will believe the teachings of an apparition, when almost the whole Church of God no longer believes in the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. Or if she does believe, it's only with the faith of the intellect and not with the faith of the will." (May 19, 1904)

Melanie wrote to Fr. Roubaud: "When the Secret has been scorned, misunderstood... held back for money, one must be surprised at nothing. The Church will endure forever, our Lord said so; but among the teaching members of the Church, what traitors, what apostates, what mercenaries, what sectarians, who bear the imprint or the sign of the beast with the ten horns St. John speaks of in his vision on Patmos! But this beast similar to the Lamb, who rises out of the earth, isn't it the figure of faithless ecclesiastics? I firmly believe so. Happy those who die in God's grace, for those who live will see sad and terrifying things. We still haven't reached the beginning of the end." (January 2, 1892; emphasis Melanie's)

Later that year, she wrote concerning a true, good priest going blind: "Oh, how God afflicts His true servants in these times! But this affliction is a punishment for the half-Christians who have rendered themselves unworthy of hearing the word of truth, which they obstinately refuse to put into practice. When God favored us, when He was giving us all we needed, we abandoned Him; now we blaspheme Him like the damned. God was giving us graces in manifold ways, now He deprives us of everything, He plays deaf, indifferent, as we did towards Him. We have nothing to say. And now He is taking from us the few good priests who, despite all the thunderbolts of those sold for gold, never ceased teaching us the practice of the Christian virtues and flight from sin..."

And this, long before the Vatican II. What of the decree of the Holy office, dated December 21, 1915? It forbade the faithful to write commentaries or interpretations of the Secret, it did not condemn the Secret itself! Due to space limitations, we reprint the Secret only, and not the entire message. This to be done on separate pages, without either commentary or interpretation. These are not needed, besides being disobedient to a bona fide, legitimate authority. We add this comment, not on the contents, but regarding how the Secret is handled: This message bothers so-

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

March 28, 1987

Dear Father Daniel,

With this letter I would like to extend a hearty welcome to the very picturesque little town Verneuil-sur-Avre, in the Normandie, France, which is easily accessible from Paris and not far away from Lisieux (Saint Therese of the Child of Jesus) and Chartres where the veil of the Blessed Virgin Mary is exhibited in its beautiful Cathedral. In Verneuil you will have the possibility of attending the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass every day morning and evening at the Communaute Notre-Dame de Misericorde consisting for the time being of three members of the Augustinian Order: the Abbot, Rev. Fr. Philippe Miguet, Father Benoit and Brother Christian Marie who was recently conferred the subdiaconate. They all belong to the apostolic succession of Mgr. Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc who is deeply venerated by all the persons with whom he met during his stay in France.

I recently spent some very happy days with this Community. Fr. Miguet would be delighted to receive faithful Catholics of the United States at his house where they can easily be accommodated and get excellent meals cooked by Fr. Benoit. Permanent guests of the house are a friendly big grey cat and a good-natured Alsatian watch-dog who are living peacefully under the same roof. However, there are also comfortable and homely hotels in the little town of Verneuil for large families and parties.

If you wish to receive more information, please write directly to: Rev. Fr. Philippe MIGUET, Communaute Notre-Dame de Misericorde, 31, rue du Buisson Vert, F - 27130 Verneuil-sur-Avre FRANCE. tele: (32) 32.23.64.

I am sure that such visits would establish many valuable friendships and strengthen the Faith in the present-day fierce battle against the powers of darkness.

Yours Sincerely in our divine Lord,
Heidi Hagen

Jason Werrick from St. Mary's Kansas. A good camper! Didn't mind sleeping in when we would let him. Bet he remembers the morning the wild cow came running thru camp.

Bill Luther of Austin, Texas, stops for a breather on his way back from Brush Creek Lakes in June. Nearly 70 years old, Bill made the trip in good style.

Taken from the picnic area near the Royal Gorge Bridge. Got to keep a close eye, and hand, on the children here.

DEVOTION TO THE BLESSED MOTHER

August 24, 1986

Finally here is a bulletin again. It took some time. Since we just celebrated the Feast of the Immaculate Heart of Mary you will find a few things of her in the appendix.

The devotion to the Blessed Mother is undoubtedly a sign of predilection. Those who love the Mother of Jesus love Him also, and those who deny Her can impossibly love Him. We must pray for such poor people, for they do not know what they are throwing away.

The Blessed Mother stood under the Cross and witnessed the Redemptive Act of Her Divine Son, the Crucifixion; She was present and guided the Apostles at Pentecost, and of course, without her, there would be no Redemption. She has and had been chosen from all eternity to be the Mother of the Redeemer. Space does not permit to sing her praises adequately. We'll all do this some day in heaven.

Speaking of heaven, the Epistle is very clear as to who goes and who does not go to heaven. The Apostle is very serious. We like to overlook all those things. People like Novels, Westerns etc. better than to read something serious and to meditate on it. The time is so short which is being given us here below, like a little kernel of sand on the seashore compared to all the rest in this world. Yet we place so much emphasis on this "here below" that we most of the time forget eternity and all that goes with it.

We are often more worried about our well being and on "how to make a living" than we are on eternal things, although Christ said: "O ye of little faith! Be not solicitous, therefore, saying: "What shall we eat? Or what shall we drink? Or wherewith shall we be clothed? For after all these things do the pagans seek. For your Father knoweth that you have need of all these things. Seek ye therefore first the Kingdom of God, and His justice; and all these things shall be added unto you." (From today's Gospel).

Let's pray now, and let's live accordingly - with one eye always on eternity and the beautiful things to be if we carry God in our hearts.

Through the Immaculate Heart of Mary,
Fr. Joseph Maria
